Hello from Sixth Street Christian Church. The season of Lent started on March 1, with Ash Wednesday. It's a bit like New Years' for church. It's a time to take a long, hard look at what we consider important. What takes up our time? What are we doing with ourselves? It's also a good time to set some goals, to compare what is with what should be and take steps in a better direction. Is it time to start a diet? Maybe a new exercise program? In a faithful context, a "diet" is a fast. When people talk about what they're giving up for Lent, that's what they're talking about. It doesn't have to be food-related, it can even be something that you should give up. What if you figured out what thing in your life that's was standing between you and blessing and gave that up? What would then be possible for you? How much more could you hear and understand without dealing with all that pointless noise? I'm curious about that, and I hope you are too. Let's see what happens. ~Michelle Brown, Pastor
