

April 5, 2017

Greetings from Sixth Street Christian Church! There are quite a few church goings-on in the next couple of weeks. We have a community prayer vigil at Middletown Community Church on Thursday, April 6, beginning at 7:00 p.m. Holy Week starts the following Sunday with Palm Sunday and runs through the next six days. Chesterfield Christian Church has invited community ministers to preach at 7:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. On the Thursday of Holy Week, Sixth Street Christian and Honey Creek United Methodist will host a service together at 6:30 p.m. to celebrate Jesus' last supper with his disciples. On Friday, everyone in the community is invited to attend a Good Friday service at Middletown United Methodist at 7:00 p.m. And those are just the events I know about! I find it significant that during this season the community holds so many worship services in common. It's as if each of us knows that neither sadness or joy are meant to be kept to ourselves. I think that's why we have funeral dinners and why we share baby pictures. When we are together, we heal faster and sing louder. So consider this your invitation to come and share in the Lord.
