Hello from Sixth Street Christian Church! We had someone join our congregation on Sunday! Yea Vicki! She deserves way more than one exclamation point, but hey, this is newspaper and I must conserve characters. It always does my heart good when someone stands up and proclaims her faith and says she has found a home at our church. To me it feels like confirmation that we're pointed in the right direction, like God is giving us a high-five. It also fills my mind with thoughts of the future. What will our congregation be like with this woman adding her strength and talents and unique perspective? How will we grow and be brought closer to God as a result? How will she grow by being with us? I love a good mystery. This one will be revealed over time by the Spirit who will guide the work we do together, the food we share, our laughter, and even our tears. We've embarked on the next leg of our journey, I wonder what we'll find along the way.
